7 Subject area description<sup>1</sup>

7.1 Artistic Projects and Final Project

The Artistic Projects and the Final Project constitute the EUJAM.

The subject area focuses on developing skills in conceiving, planning, realising and evaluating individual and group artistic projects with special regards to areas such as performance, artistic expression, composition, arranging, interpretation, music technology, collaboration with other arts.

The student has to reflect orally as well as in writing on personal artistic development, based on practice-based research.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Specific course outcomes are described by each institution, complying with local jazz curricula as well as the joint learning outcomes of the EUJAM Programme.

<sup>2</sup> Each partner institution must decide the actual content and framework of practice-based research. Practice based research can be an entirely artistic process and product and is not necessarily depending on a written, academic documentation.

The projects will be supported by the other subject areas where appropriate.

Each project will have to be digitally documented combined with a written report describing reflections on project process and results, forming a portfolio at the end of the course.

The final project is the capstone project of the programme. The final project is closely related to the student's performance studies.

Based upon an approved project contract the course will aim at the final student production, including production/business skills and skills in Art & Culture.

The final output is a live concert, a digitally documented product as well as a written report, describing the student's reflections on the project process and results, according to the requirements of the home institution.
